

Occupational Health Risk Surveillance Assessment

Designed to monitor employee health and identify early signs of adverse health effects resulting from the workplace environment.

Employers are responsible for monitoring and acting upon any employee health problems that may occur as a result of work tasks they perform, substances used or environment in which they work. We offer a range of tests that support employers' duty of care to their workforce and comply to Health and Safety regulations. The tests cover a range of topics including COSHH, noise at work, fork lift driving, night working, working at heights and much more. We work with you to devise an assessment that meets your workforce Occupational Health surveillance risk needs.

How it works

Tell us about your workplace - Our team of qualified Occupational Health practitioners will work with you to design an assessment suitable to your company needs. We will arrange a convenient time to visit your site and will carry out assessments in a private area at your workplace.

Receive our guidance - Using the latest mobile health equipment, we will conduct a range of tests to identify any health risks to your employees. We will provide a detailed report outlining recommendations to prevent or improve work-related ill health for each individual we test.

Based on the outcomes of the assessment, we can provide Fit for Work Certificates.

We also offer an Occupational Health Management Referral service if it becomes apparent that an employee may need more support.
